If in 2011 Swiss occupational benefits for once were not characterized by any major political changes, they were deeply marked by the turbulence in the financial markets. Swisscanto Collective Foundation mastered the ensuing challenges successfully. At the same time, consolidation of achievements made so far as well as the expansion of established strengths and the development of innovation remained on the agenda.

A Continuous Coverage of More than 100%

Customer confidence in semi-autonomous collective foundations such as Swisscanto remained intact in 2011, even though the numbers of affiliated enterprises and of insured persons were slightly regressive due to the market. This confidence is certainly justified since the coverage ratio remained distinctly positive throughout the entire year, even though the situation on the financial and capital markets remained difficult. Swisscanto Collective Foundation gives and will continue to give top priority to the security of the pension funds capital, which finds its expression in a sustainable and stability-oriented long-term investment policy.

Innovations in a Dynamic Market

In parallel, numerous innovations to the benefit of our existing as well as our future customers are being implemented, since the quiet in the occupational benefits market cannot last long: The increasing saturation of some partial markets together with the growth potential of other segments creates a high level of dynamics.

Reforms as Challenges

Swisscanto Collective Foundation sees political challenges such as the structural reform in a positive light: The structural reform serves to further improve transparency in occupational benefits – Swisscanto Collective Foundation has pre-empted this concern many years ago. Furthermore, the reform will strengthen the image of and the confidence in occupational benefits, both of which are ultimately in the best interest of providers as well the affiliated enterprises.

Swisscanto Collective Foundation is and will remain your reliable and innovative occupational benefits partner. We are looking forward to continuing our collaboration and thank you for your confidence.

Investment Portfolio

Performance

Performance Development

In the past year, the saying "Sell in May and go away" could not have been truer. In connection with the Euro and government debt crisis, stock markets lost significantly in value after May and were corrected in some cases by more than 30%, depending on indices. The Swiss Performance Index suffered a loss of roughly 28.7% from peak to low point. The market did not calm down before August. Bonds, in particular, profited from the tense market situation, not least due to the worldwide low-interest policy of central banks, which is likely to be continued for an extended period of time.

With regard to the portfolio, CHF-denominated bonds therefore developed best with +6.4%. With 44% this category shows the highest allocation of the portfolio. Bonds in foreign currencies also developed positively (+2.6%) but lagged behind CHF-denominated bonds due to the negative currency developments. Until the end of September this category even showed a negative performance, which turned markedly positive after the intervention of the Swiss National Bank in August. Besides the nominal assets, real estate in Switzerland also provided a positive contribution with a raise of +5.6%.

Stocks impacted negatively since they finished the year -8.0% (Switzerland), -10.9% (world) and -23.5% (emerging markets). Commodities (-2.8%) and Hedge Funds (-4.0%) also lost value, though to a much lesser degree: they could not realize a supplementary contribution as diversification placements. As in previous years, the markets were defined by risk on, risk off regimes, which concerned all high-risk categories.

The total yield of the portfolio reached 0.7% at year's end and remained significantly under the long-term expected value. The tactical overlay, which decreased value particularly during the negative market phase between May and August, negatively influenced the result by -0.5%. In order to safeguard the coverage ratio, the Investment Committee decided to suspend tactical overlay as of end of August and to implement instead an assets strategy of index-tracking allocation.

Conclusion and Outlook

The year 2011 was marked by the Euro and government debt crisis as well as the continuously less promising macro perspective, which could lead Europe in particular into a recession by the end of 2011. After a good start early in the year, stocks were negatively impacted, above all during the second and third quarter 2011, and the overall positive performance of the portfolio was diminished.

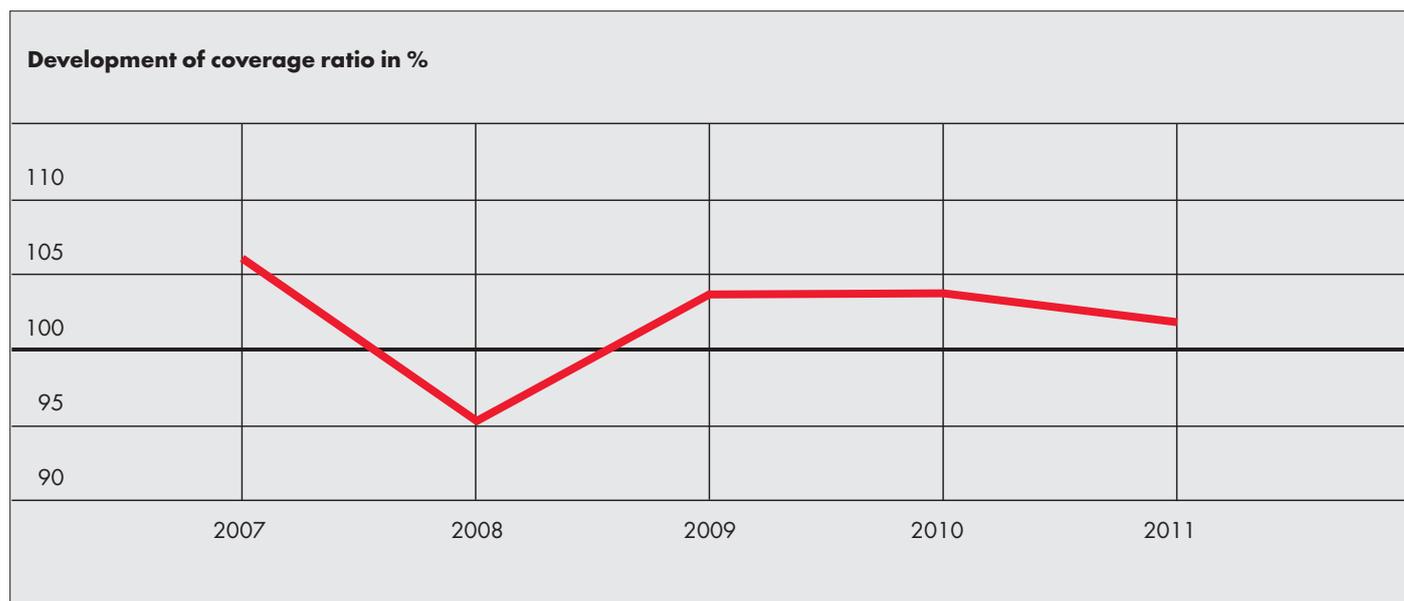

A review of the investment strategy is currently under way and will be concluded during 2012. Swisscanto Collective Foundation's generally conservative investment strategy, with a stock quota including commodities of around 13% plus a high nominal value quota, has had a comparatively positive effect over the last years.

Development of Coverage Ratio, Reserves

Development of coverage ratio

Thanks to a safety-oriented investment policy, Swisscanto Collective Foundation managed to keep the coverage ratio above the 100% barrier for the entire duration of year under review, despite the turbulent financial markets, and could further strengthen its excellent position in comparison to the market.
